

WIZZ AIR STRENGTHENS ITS CAMPANIA HUB: THREE NEW INTERNATIONAL ROUTES FROM SALERNO STARTING JUNE 2027

Budapest, Tirana and Warsaw join Wizz Air's network in Campania, just weeks after the announcement of a fourth aircraft based in Naples. The airline further consolidates its presence in the region and expands its international connectivity.

Salerno, 30 September 2026 – Wizz Air, Italy's second-largest airline by market share, is further strengthening its presence in Campania with the announcement of three new international routes from Salerno Costa d'Amalfi and Cilento Airport to Budapest, Tirana and Warsaw, starting on 6 June 2027.

The announcement marks another step in the airline's regional growth strategy and comes just weeks after confirmation of a fourth Airbus A321neo to be based in Naples, joining the Campania base in March 2027.

By adding Salerno to its network, Wizz Air is strengthening an increasingly integrated Campania hub spanning Naples and Salerno, offering passengers more travel opportunities while supporting international connectivity and tourism flows to one of Italy's most dynamic regions.

This new development has also been made possible by the strong relationship built over the years with GESAC, with which Wizz Air continues to work to support the growth of Campania's airport system and meet increasing demand for travel to and from the region.

The three new routes will be operated using Airbus A321neo aircraft. Tickets are available from today on the Wizz Air website and via the WIZZ app:

- Salerno - Budapest: every Wednesday and Sunday from 6 June 2027, with fares starting at €24.99
- Salerno - Tirana: every Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday from 6 June 2027, with fares starting at €14.99
- Salerno - Warsaw: every Wednesday and Sunday from 6 June 2027, with fares starting at €22.99

Wizz Air's arrival in Salerno comes at a time of significant consolidation for the airline in Campania. In Naples, Wizz Air has increased its operating capacity by 62% year on year, while growth in the summer 2026 season reached 133.6% compared with the previous summer.

In recent weeks, this expansion has been further supported by the announcement of a fourth aircraft to be based at Naples International Airport from March 2027, alongside new routes to Palermo, Nice, Basel and Genoa and approximately 500,000 additional seats for passengers.

The launch of flights from Salerno is therefore a natural continuation of this strategy, enabling Wizz Air to make even greater use of the complementary roles of the two airports, offering an increasingly extensive network to passengers in Campania and creating new opportunities for international tourism to Naples, Salerno, the Amalfi Coast and the entire region.

“Campania plays a central role in Wizz Air’s growth strategy in Italy, and today’s announcement marks another important milestone in a journey we have pursued consistently. Just a few weeks ago, we announced a fourth aircraft based in Naples and another significant increase in our capacity in the region; today, we are extending our presence to Salerno as well, adding three new international connections to Budapest, Tirana and Warsaw. For us, Naples and Salerno are two complementary parts of one strong Campania hub, through which we aim to offer passengers more and more travel opportunities while supporting the region’s international appeal. The relationship we have built with GESAC allows us to look confidently towards the growth of our network in Campania and to continue investing in one of Wizz Air’s most important markets in Italy. Let’s WIZZ, Campania!” said József Váradi, CEO of Wizz Air.

“Wizz Air’s announcement is an important sign of growth for Salerno Airport and confirms the airline’s confidence in Campania’s airport system. I would like to thank CEO Váradi for choosing to invest in Salerno: this agreement is the result of intensive teamwork aimed at creating solid, long-lasting development opportunities for the airport.

The new routes to Tirana, Budapest and Warsaw enrich the network and open Salerno to three international markets with great potential, strengthening Campania’s links with the Balkans and Central Europe. Wizz Air’s entry also broadens the range of airlines serving the airport, making its offering increasingly diverse and competitive. The agreement provides for one new destination each year over the next three years, progressively bringing the number of Wizz Air routes operated from Salerno to six. We know, however, that market response will be the main factor guiding the airline’s future decisions. The challenge therefore begins now: working together to make these routes successful and create the conditions for an increasingly significant Wizz Air presence in Salerno and further growth in the airport’s international connectivity,” said Roberto Barbieri, CEO of GESAC.

The announcement forms part of Wizz Air’s broader growth in Italy, where the airline has steadily consolidated its presence to become the country’s second-largest carrier by market share. In 2025, Wizz Air carried over 21 million passengers in Italy, an increase of 8% on the previous year, confirming the Italian market as one of the pillars of its European strategy.
